Some genius has invented a kind of paper which cannot be destroyed by fire. Think of the terrible consequences in after years in writing a love letter on that kind of paper.

An indignation meeting of the citizens of Grove City, Ill., was held recently in the school house where Emma Bond was outraged and resolutions passed denouncing the verdict in the Bond trial as an outrage upon the people and justice.

They take things differently in Texas than in Dakota. The editor of a weekly in that part of the country was presented by his good wife with a girl baby. The sight of the little waif threw him into raptures and he rushed off to the editorial sanctum to discharge his pent up emotions. The next issue of the paper contained the following item: "The beautiful gates were left ajar last Sabbath and a little angel girl came down on a falling star." The Dakota editor would never indulge in rhodomontade.
