

How He Did It.

It is painful to print such incidents of unnecessary tragedy as the following. We do it because we are anxious to circulate every warning against playing with firearms, and in the hope that others may learn in season never to point a gun or pistol in sport, because they think they are not loaded. The residence of John Williams, of Scranton, Pa., was the scene of a pitiful tragedy one day last September, says a correspondent of a New York paper.

Mr. Williams's son, Andrew, a young man twenty-two years of age, was indulging in a frolic with his sister, Maggie, a bright, playful and pretty girl of seventeen. The young man in order to escape her, darted up stairs and into his bedroom, where she followed him.

Mrs. Williams, a moment later, was startled by the report of a pistol, and ran up stairs to her son's room. As she was entering, she heard her son exclaim,—"My God! I have shot Maggie!"

He was greatly excited, and holding the unconscious girl in his arms, cried, "O mother, I have killed her. What shall I do?" holding the revolver in his hand. Then, suddenly raising it to his own temple, he said, "I shall take my own life. I cannot live."

At that moment Andrew's father came rushing into the room and caught his arm just in time to prevent a double tragedy. Medical aid was summoned, and it was discovered that the bullet had entered Maggie's right temple.

Andrew was terribly distressed when told that his sister could not live. He surrendered himself into the custody of an officer, and was placed in the County Jail. He stated that when Maggie followed him into his bedroom he saw the revolver lying on a table, and taking it up he pointed it at her in play, saying,—"Look out, I'll shoot."

He says he did not think it was loaded, and was horrified when he saw that he had shot her. She staggered forward and would have fallen on the floor had he not caught her in his arms.

The Causes of Deteriorated Eyesight.

The causes to which this deterioration of eyesight has been attributed are alleged to be cross-lights from opposite windows, light shining directly on the face, insufficient light, small types, and to the position of the desk, forcing the scholar to bend over and bring the eyes too close to the book or writing paper, etc.

But were all these defects remedied, the integrity of the eye would not be restored nor its deterioration prevented. The chief causes of the evil would still remain. These are the colors of the paper and ink. White paper and black ink are ruining the eyesight of all reading nations. The "rays of the sun," says Lord Bacon, "are reflected by a white body, and are absorbed by a black one." No one dissents from this opinion; but, despite these indications of Nature and of philosophy, we print our books and write our letters in direct opposition to the suggestions of optical science.

When we read a book printed in the existing mode we do not see the letters, which, being black or non-reflective, are reflected by the retina, but they are not received by a spontaneous, direct action of that organ. The white surface of the paper is reflected, but the letters are detected only by a discriminative effort of the optic nerves. This effort annoys the nerves, and, when long continued, exhausts their susceptibility. The human eye cannot long sustain the broad glare of a white surface without injury. The author of "Spanish Vistas," in Harper's Magazine, says of Cartagena that "blind people seem to be numerous there, a fact which may be owing to the excessive dazzle of the sunlight and the absence of verdure." Mr. Seward, in his tour around the world, observed that "in Egypt ophthalmia is universal," attributing it to the same "excessive dazzle" of the wide areas of white sand; and the British soldiers, in the state campaign in that country, exhibited symptoms of the disease. In the Smithsonian report for 1877 it is stated, in a paper on "Color Blindness," that "M. Chevreul has produced 14,420 distinguishable tints of the elementary colors, from which the paper manufacturers could select colors more agreeable to the eye than the dazzling white, so weakening and irritating to the nerves of that delicate organ." Samuel Yorke at Lee, in Popular Science Monthly.

Senator Wilson's Little Romance.

Washington Correspondence New York Sun.

The election of Judge Wilson as Senator from Maryland is well regarded here. He was an inveterate snuff taker many years after the practice had been tabooed in good society, but finally compromised by giving up his snuff-box and making an arrangement with a desiring woman, who kept a shop in Snow Hill, to get a pinch whenever he called at the store for it. Mrs. Knox, who had been in better circumstances before she kept the shop, had a pretty and refined daughter, who had been educated, and was a lady in manner and deportment. The mother died. Thinking Judge Wilson a staid old widower, and adapted to looking after a pretty and friendless girl, she had left her property in the judge's hands, asking him to look after it, and to be mindful of her daughter, an orphan.

The judge settled up the estate, secured her little patrimony to the daughter, and finally succumbed to her beauty and merit, and married her. The match turned out most happily.

The official record of the death of a young girl in Brighton, Mass., filed in the registrar's office, gives as the cause of death: "Primary—due to the Boston school system of 'cramming,' too much study and brain work, duration six months; secondary—congestion of the brain, resulting in coma, duration thirteen days."

The number of sheep in Georgia increased 16 per cent. in the last year—311,902 for 1883, against 277,550 in 1882; and this, notwithstanding 5,000 sheep were killed by dogs during the year. It is not stated how much the dog population has increased.

Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil "makes pain hum." That is what Thos. G. Read of 38 East Swan street, Buffalo, N. Y., says. He suffered from Rheumatism several years, when the malady yielded to Electric Oil like frost in a June sun.

Edward S. Rowley, 222 Twelfth street, Davenport, Iowa, says that "as a remedy for Catarrh Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil stands at the top." Mr. Rowley didn't distort the truth a particle.

The editor of the St. Thomas Times (D. T.) says he would not do without Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil; Mrs. M. J. Fellows, Barr Oak, Mich., praises it highly for colds; E. L. Meader, Delaware, Iowa, calls it the best thing in the world for asthmatic bronchitis.
