

Bright Thoughts.

Love, that has nothing but beauty to keep it in good health, is short-lived, and apt to have ague fits.—[Erasmus.]

A skeptical young man one day, conversing with the celebrated Dr. Parr, observed that he would believe nothing which he could not understand. "Then, young man, your creed will be the shortest of any man I know."

The most censorious are generally the least judicious, who, having nothing to recommend themselves, will be finding fault with others. No man envies the merit of another who has enough of his own.—[Rule of Life.]

There is no virtue that adds so noble a charm to the finest traits of beauty as that which exerts itself in watching over the tranquillity of an aged parent. There are no tears that give so rich and sweet a luster to the cheek of innocence as the tears of filial sorrow.—[St. Julian.]

Coolness, and absence of heat and haste, indicate fine qualities. A gentleman makes no noise; a lady is serene.—[Emerson.]

The pleasure of reading without application is a dangerous pleasure. Useless books we should lay aside, and make all possible good use of those from which we may reap some fruit.—[Foster.]

There are no persons more solicitous about the preservation of rank than those who have no rank at all. Observe the humors of a country christening, and you will find no court in christendom so ceremonious as the quality of Breutford.—[Shenstone.]

Good nature and evenness of temper will give you an easy companion for life; virtue and good sense; love and constancy a good wife or husband.—[Addison.]

Spurgeon's Popularity.

Mr. Spurgeon, the great London preacher, will attain his jubilee in June next, having been born at Kelvedon, Essex, on June 19, 1834. He was settled at Waterbeach when only 17, and in London, over the church now meeting in the Metropolitan tabernacle, at the early age of 19. His jubilee has already begun to excite considerable interest. It is an event in which most of the Nonconformist churches are likely in some way to take some part in commemorating. The silver wedding of his pastorate was celebrated a year or two since by the collection of £6,000, which was presented to Mr. Spurgeon, and which he forthwith handed over for the benefit of institutions connected with his ministerial work. A second fund, in recognition of his jubilee, is now in contemplation, through the exact object toward which it will be devoted is not yet announced. A building, to be called "Jubilee House," has just been commenced at the rear of the tabernacle. It is to form a residence for the chapel-keeper, and a suite of offices for the church officers. The church at present under Mr. Spurgeon's pastoral charge numbers 5,300 persons, and overtaxes the sitting accommodations of the tabernacle.

A Popular Leader Forgotten.

The Demosthenes of the Chartist movement, which agitated England fifty years ago, was Henry Vincent. Thousands of Englishmen listened in breathless sympathy, when in burning words he demanded universal suffrage and the ballot. Crowds surged around him wherever he spoke. So great was his influence that the government, looking upon him as a dangerous character, thrust him into prison. The severity of his treatment produced an outbreak. Hundreds of workmen gathered to release the people's hero. They were repulsed by soldiers and armed policemen, after a conflict in which ten workmen were killed and fifty wounded. Thirty years after this popular demonstration, there was a riot in London. A great crowd, exasperated at not being permitted to hold a public meeting in Hyde Park, broke down the park railings. A mass meeting was held in Trafalgar Square to denounce the action of the authorities. Suddenly there appeared on the pedestal that supports Landseer's lions a portly man, with a fine head and white hair. Silence having been attained, he exclaimed at the top of his voice: "Gentlemen, I think it right to tell you that I am Henry Vincent." The once famous orator paused and—nobody cheered. The Demosthenes of the Chartists was a forgotten man. Such is popularity.

Druggists complain that their trade is not so remunerative as it used to be. Besides the adverse influences of the "scalpers," conditions in the legitimate business are in other ways unfavorable. Toilet articles are now sold by grocers and other business men; patent medicines no longer remain specialties of the drug trade, and the monopoly of their most valuable wares has been broken.

There are two unhappy persons when castor oil is going down. One is the man who has bought it at a higher figure, and the other is the small boy who is taking a tablespoonful of it.

Mr. Wright of Indiana, has bequeathed $1,000 to each of his 20 nieces and nephews. There are very few young men and women who can start worth on $1,000.

Salvini tells a newspaper reporter that he was a soldier for two years, and fought under Garibaldi at the siege of Rome. But he prefers stage warfare, much.

Gospel Facts.

[The following has appeared in nearly every newspaper throughout the United States, and is one of the finest testimonials ever won by a medicine, proprietary or otherwise. Dr. Crane (he is a graduate of medicine as well as a clergyman) gives this evidence without any solicitation whatever. It will repay all to read it.]
"I have never seen a medicine more perfectly adapted to its various applications than Thomas' Electric Oil. I was for many years a sufferer from quinsy; Thomas' Electric Oil cured me. My wife and child had diphtheria; Thomas' Electric Oil cured them; and if taken in season it will cure seven times out of ten. I am confident it is a cure for the most obstinate cold or cough, and if taken into the head, by the nostrils, two or three times a week will positively remove the most offensive case of catarrh; and notwithstanding the delicate nature of the mucous membrane of the nasal organs, can be taken up with perfect impunity. For deafness and earache it has done wonders to my certain knowledge. It is the only medicine dubbed patent that I have ever felt like recommending, and I am anxious to see it in every place, for I tell you it would not be without it in the house for any consideration. It also operates in asthma as a specific, and whenever it is used it becomes indispensable to household safety. I am ready to give any one the benefit of my observation, both as to its effects and mode of application, if they will drop me a note making inquiry." Rev. E. F. Crane, Dunkirk, N. Y. POTASH!

Lodds of Potassium is one of the strongest of the minerals used in medicine, and has produced much suffering in the world. Taken for a long time and in large doses, it dries up the gastric juices, impairs digestion, the stomach refuses food, and the patient declines in health and weight. Persons with Blood or Skin Diseases should be careful how they take these mineral poisons, as in most instances the effect of them is to almost permanently impair the constitution. To take the place of these poisons we offer you a safe, sure, prompt and permanent relief from your troubles. Swift's Specific is entirely a vegetable preparation, and it is easy to convince you of its merit.
