BRAIN AND INTELLECT.

The Highest Authorities Localize "Mind" in the Prefrontal Lobes of the Brain.

The exact seat in the brain of the highest intellectual faculties has formed a moot point in science since the functions of the organ of mind began to be investigated with accuracy. The general consensus of opinion localizes what we term "mind" in the prefrontal lobes of the brain, but by another school of thinkers the hinder lobes have been credited with performing our highest cerebral duties. The balance of evidence, I should say, is decidedly in favor of the former view, and recent researches and observations by Dr. Phelps, an American investigator, would appear to assist in strengthening the opinion that the most important portion of the brain is its anterior region. In the course of the investigations in question some 295 cases of brain injury and disease were examined. In all save two it was noted that interference of extensive nature with the prefrontal region resulted in serious disturbance of the mental faculties. Less severe injury produced less marked effects. These facts parallel the researches of other investigators, and they are further substantiated by what is observed in cases of idiocy connected with a want of development of the frontal lobes of the brain.

As to the relative importance of the two lobes or halves of the cerebrum, or chief brain mass, most of us know that each half governs the opposite side of the body, and that, as we are right-handed, so we may be called left-brained. The superiority in functional importance of our left brain is not questioned, and it is therefore interesting to find Dr. Phelps insisting, from the results of his investigations, that our left brain lobe is really the intellectual half. The right half, it is added, is capable of sustaining severe injury without marked mental effects supervening, and cases are quoted in support of this fact. Indeed, such cases have frequently puzzled physiologists, seeing that the disturbance of the intellect has in no sense been commensurate with the injury to the brain. On the notion of the greater importance of our left brain, and on the theory that severe injuries which do not produce utter mental breakdown really involve the right lobe, the puzzling constitution of the brain may be explained in part at least. But the last word has not yet been said concerning the brain's ways and work. Injuries of the left half do not always produce serious effects as regards the mental life, while we have had some physiologists insisting that we have really two brains, and that while the left lobe is the Jekyll of the intellect the right, on occasion at least, is apt to play the part of Hyde. A fascinating theory this, but one to which sober science is not likely to append its imprimatur.—London Chronicle.

Deaf Men Who Can Hear.
Pretended deafness is readily exposed by a simple device, which is often resorted to by the Parisian authorities. Six men there recently tried to escape conscription, but they subsequently betrayed themselves. One man was informed that he might stroll about the barrack yard, a portion of which was paved with stone. A few minutes later a coin was adroitly dropped behind him, and its musical jingle caused him to turn to look for it. The same trick was tried with each of the other five, and succeeded in every case.

Stage Waits Are Prevented.
A revolving stage is in use in a Munich theater. It is a circular platform and arranged in four parts, like a pie cut in quarters. At each change one-quarter of the circle is presented to view. By this plan stage waits are avoided, as a complete change of scene is instantaneously effected by a quarter revolution.

JOLLY PRIEST IN THE WAR.

The Unpleasant Experience of Father Dahill with a Boer Leader in the South African War.

"As interesting a personage as I met in South Africa," writes a military contributor to M. A. P., "is Father Dahill, a cheery, witty, good-natured Irish chaplain, full of anecdote and brimming over with fun. The padre was in South Africa at the beginning of the war, and had seen the whole thing right through without a scratch, until he was badly hurt in the Victoria road railway disaster, when the rear part of the mail train ran into the front portion, which was standing at Victoria road station. He had been taken prisoner by Gen. Malan, the late commandant Hugo and Commandant Brand. Of the two first named he has nothing but praise, but he naively remarks: 'I should not care to fall into Brand's hands again!'"

"Twenty men of the Bedford militia mounted infantry had been cut to bits—7 killed, 13 wounded. The padre heard this news, determined to go out in his Cape cart, find the wounded and do what he could for them. He started on his mission at nine o'clock at night. Losing his way, he found himself held up two hours after by a Boer soldier. He had driven straight into Gen. Malan's camp! The padre was brought before the general, whom he found arrayed in dress clothes, spotted white shirt and tie. Malan proceeded with the usual string of questions, asking him his mission, etc. All of them were answered to the Boer's satisfaction. 'By the way,' said Malan, 'have you a rifle with you?' 'Yes,' was the reply, 'in my cart.' A burgher was sent to fetch it, but returned empty-handed. 'Come, general,' said the padre, 'I shall find it.' And from the back of the cart he produced a blackthorn stick, explaining at the same time that it was an 'Irish rifle.' 'Good,' exclaimed the Boer general. 'You have had your joke with me, I shall now have mine with you. I intend to keep this 'Irish rifle.' And, despite the padre's protests that he had had the blackthorn with him throughout the war, Malan kept it. At the same time it must be added that Malan packed in the cart three bottles of whisky and three dozens of soda water for the wounded, and sent a burgher to drive the padre direct to the spot, where he found 13 wounded men in an outhouse. The two men parted the best of friends, the padre hoping that an unconditional peace was near at hand, Malan replying: 'A fair peace, perhaps, but never an abjectly unconditional surrender as long as there are any of our fellows left!'"

Ancient Skyscrapers.
Numerous conflicting estimates have been made of the height of the Tower of Babel, but one fact never has been denied, and that is that it was a skyscraper. St. Jerome, in his commentary on Isaiah, says that the tower was already 4,000 paces high when God came down to stop the work. A pace is about two and a half feet, therefore 4,000 paces must be 10,000 feet; consequently Babel was 20 times as high as the Pyramids (which are only 500 feet). Father Calmet says the tower was 81,000 feet high and that the languages were confounded because the architects were confounded, as they did not know how to bring the building to a head. Moreover, it is understood that the Chinese language of to-day was originally the same language as the high German.—N. Y. Press.

Lord Kitchener's Reward.
King Edward's recognition of the services rendered by Lord Kitchener in South Africa, created him a viscount and promoted him to be a general. The king also asked and obtained from parliament authority to make him a grant of $250,000. The grant was voted June 5, which was the third anniversary of the vote making a grant of $150,000 to Lord Kitchener for his brilliant success in the campaign in the Sudan.—Youth's Companion.

EASY FOR THE DRUGGIST.

A Letter of Recommendation That Was Taken for a Prescription for Cough Medicine.

A young man being out of employment recently requested a former employer to give him a letter of recommendation to aid him in securing a situation. The letter was written and handed to the applicant, who was quite unable to read it, as was every person to whom it was shown. He was advised to take it to a printing office, where it could be deciphered, as compositors are noted for being able to make out the worst specimens of writing, relates London Tit-Bits.

It was handed to compositors in various offices, and in turn given up without being deciphered.

As a forlorn hope it was taken to a chemist, who, from his long experience in deciphering prescriptions, had the reputation of being able to read anything.

The man of drugs took the paper, gazed at it long and thoughtfully, and then seized an empty quart bottle and hurried round the shop, taking some fluids from sundry bottles, and finally shaking the compound vigorously. Then, to the owner of the letter, he remarked that astonished individual:

"Two shillings; and a very good cough mixture it is!"

Brutus' Little Joke.
"Brutus," said Casius, when Marc Antony had mobilized two or three corps of legions and got his eight-inch rapid-fire guns into play, "I have no longer any stomach for war."

"Well," replied Brutus, after his customary five minutes for thought, "having no more casus belli, we might as well lay down our arms."

And it took Caesar another five minutes to figure out the deadly entendre that lay in the words of the noblest Roman of them all.—Portland Oregonian.

Anatomical Details.

One Sunday afternoon some one was telling a painful story of a canary the other leg broken in such a way that amputation was necessary. The ladies of the party were lamenting over the sad affair, when one young woman, wishing to relieve the pressure, remarked: "O, well, the little thing can get along nicely on three legs." As the other members of the party started to laugh, she said, hurriedly: "O, sure enough, it has only two legs. I was thinking it was like a chicken."—Toledo Times.

CONGRESSMAN ALDRICH ENDORSES THE TONIC, PERUNA.

Says: "It Will Build Up a Depleted System Rapidly."

Hon. W. F. Aldrich, Congressman from Alabama, writes from Washington, D. C.:

"This is to certify that Peruna, manufactured by The Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, O., has been used in my family with success. It is a fine tonic and will build up a depleted system rapidly. I can recommend it to those who need a safe vegetable remedy for debility."—W. F. Aldrich.

H. S. Emory, Vice Chancellor and Master of Arms, K. P., of Omaha, Neb., writes from 213 North Sixteenth street, the following words of praise for Peruna as a tonic. He says:

Catarrh of Stomach.

"It is with pleasure I recommend Peruna as a tonic of unusual merit. A large number of prominent members of the different Orders with which I have been connected have been cured by the use of Peruna of cases of catarrh of the stomach and head; also in kidney complaint and weakness of the pelvic organs.

"It tones up the system, aids digestion, induces sleep, and is well worthy the confidence of sufferers of the above complaints."—H. S. Emory.

Nervous Debility.

Everyone who is in the least degree subject to nervousness, sleeplessness, prostration, mental fatigue or nervous debility in any form, finds the hot weather of June, July and August very hard to bear, if not dangerous.

One of the First.
Dining car service on American railroads was first inaugurated in 1875, and dining car service between Twin Cities and Chicago was first established by the Northwestern Line, as also were all the conveniences of "Limited" train service; and today finds the North-Western Limited between Minneapolis, St. Paul and Chicago the peer of all other trains. For full information address T. W. Tensdale, General Passenger Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

Hon. W. F. Aldrich.

The only safe course to take is to keep the blood pure, digestion good, and sleep regular. No remedy equals in all respects, Peruna for these purposes. If the system is run down and weakened by catarrh, Peruna removes and rejuvenates the nerves and brain.

A book on the catarrhal diseases of summer will be mailed to any address, upon request, by The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

The above testimonials are only two of 50,000 letters received touching the merits of Peruna as a catarrhal tonic. No more useful remedy to tone up the system has ever been devised by the medical profession.
