Have You
Common Sense?

Nearly every patent medicine company and amusement enterprise floods the country and fills the papers with testimonials and press notices re-claiming the wonderful merits of their particular medicine or entertainment and expect the people to believe them to be genuine and bona fide notices. How easy it is to get a testimonial if you furnish the medicine free to some one who only imagines they are sick. How easy to get a press notice at 10 or 20 cents a line. What a clever artist a person can be if he spreads a fine banquet? How intellectual, progressive and artistic some men are if they possess wealth and spend it profusely? How often is true merit recognized? Are you gulled by every testimonial or flattering press notice you see? No you have common sense and know they are bought either with cash, bribes or flattery. We publish no notices nor testimonials but simply say to you in this paid local that "A Royal Sport" which will appear at the Opera House next Saturday, Oct. 18, is a clean dramatic production. A beautiful story of every day life. Abounding in touching pathos sparkling comedy, thrilling situations and fine scenic effects. Interspersed with up-to-date novelties and specialties singing and dancing. If you want to enjoy an evening and forget the cares and worry of your every day life, spend one night with a "A Royal Sport."
