How's that! Who'll be the next sheriff? Why Hans H. Koloen of course. In the first place he is on the republican ticket and backed up by a platform that is in favor of enforcing the platatory law, while his opponent is a platform that wants the saloon. Mr. Koloen should be elected by a large majority—and he will be.

Kilshaw & Wolford's great play "A Royal Sport" was given at the Opera House at this place last Saturday evening to a crowded house. The play was well presented but we rather think that had some of the songs been left out it would have been better. The play is one full of romance and showed up the greed of wealth—a father sacrificing his daughter to an old slyster who had him under his control on account of money obligations. The girl's lover, however, fooled the old man and the slyster and all ended very happily. Cooperstown people like well presented plays but they don't like the kind of songs given last Saturday night. The next time this company comes to our town we hope they will cut that class of singing—it spoils the play.

WANTED—boy to herd stock. Apply to E. S. Hamilton.

The Euterpean Quartette, composed of famous singers, will appear at the Opera House, Friday evening, Oct. 31. This quartette comes highly recommended by the press, principals of schools and college professors. This quartette comprises four ladies of unusually fine musical ability, each being an accomplished soloist. Their solos, duets and trios are a special feature of their program. While their repertoire includes a sufficient number of light and popular songs, yet the characteristic features of all their work, is the high class music which they sing. Their voices are powerful yet sweet and melodious. There is no lady quartette superior to the Euterpean for concert work. Miss Bidwell is the baritone, is also a reader of rare ability.
