JOHN SYVERSON.

Announcement.

The Quaker Quartette, organized in Philadelphia, September 1, 1856, by Charles H. Baker, is the oldest male quartette in America in continuous service. From that date, they sang together for ten years; then its personnel changed every few years, more or less, still retaining the Quaker name. In September, 1887, N. L. Baker, son of the founder, joined the Quartette as basso. He is now the only member left of the original quartette.

The bureau confidently affirms that the Quaker Male Quartette Company, as now organized for the season of 1902 and 1903, is the peer of any organization that ever sang before an audience. The quartette will not only appear in full dress, but also in elegant Quaker costumes during the rendition of the program, and introduce many novelties that no other company will be capable of giving. In quaint comedy they are beyond comparison. While every member of the quartette is a soloist, Mr. Baker, the basso who sings three octaves, from Tenor G to G below low C, is not only one of the best basso singers in the author of many of the most popular songs of the day, but one of the very best humorous vocalists on the concert stage. "Ye quaint and curious melodies" of golden times, as rendered by this quartette, must be heard to be fully appreciated.

Mr. Baker, desiring to keep as many of the older members of the company together as possible, has secured two of the artists who sang in it last year. Mr. Bassett and Cords, thus insuring the beautiful harmony that always characterizes their concerts.
