

Mrs. F. Wright, of Oelwein, lowa, is another one of the million women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

A Young New York Lady Tells of a Wonderful Cure:—

"My trouble was with the ovaries; I am tall, and the doctor said I grew too fast for my strength. I suffered dreadfully from inflammation and doctored continually, but got no help. I suffered from terrible dragging sensations with the most awful pains low down in the side and pains in the back, and the most aronizing headaches. and the most agonizing headaches. No one knows what I endured. Often I was sick to the stomach, and every little while I would be too sick to go to work, for three or four days; I work in a large store, and I suppose standing on my feet all day made me worse.

"At the suggestion of a friend of my mother's I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it is simply wonderful. I felt better after the first two or three doese. It seemed as though a weight doses; it seemed as though a weight was taken off my shoulders; I con-tinued its use until now I can truth-fully say I am entirely cured. Young girls who are always paying doctor's bills without getting any help as I did, ought to take your medicine. It costs so much less, and it is sure to Cure them. — Yours truly, ADELAIDE PRAHL, 174 St. Ann's Ave., New York ." — $5000 forfelt if original of above letter ng genuineness cannot be produced.

OATS AND FIELD PEAS.

Ohio Farmer Explains Why He Prefers This Combination to Timothy and Clover.

After some years of repeated disappointment in trying to get paying crops of timothy and clover on our light sandy loam, we began in 1899 to try oats and field peas, cutting some to feed green into the cows and having the rest. The result is that we have since made them our regular hay crop, abandoning timothy entirely but still whacking away at the clover because we hate to give it up. A fine stand of clover secured last year, sown in July with buckwheat, nearly all winterkilled, and the ground (six acres) went to swell our oat and pea acreage this spring to over 20 acres.

Here is a photo showing the growth much of the oats and peas made the man shown being five feet nine inches.

OHIO OATS AND PEA FIELD.

The poorest stand was from 11/2 to two feet high, but most of it was three feet or better. We sow three bushels to the acre, half and half by measure, thoroughly mixed on the barn floor, and put in at one sowing. We set the drill down to suit the peas, and the oats' seem to have no trouble in getting up in time to support them. With a large acreage, or other crops needing attention at about the same time, we begin to cut when there are peas "big enough to eat." The oats are mostly well headed out by that time, but we are governed by the condition of the "clover" (peas) part of the combination.

We generally let the hay lie undisturbed in the swath for about 24 hours after cutting, then it is tedded and the next day we drive over it with the loader, which licks it up on the wagon from the swath. I'll do it."

"It isn't much and a search was quite a second growth by the time we were through with the lot (two acres). The first five acres we cut for hay was rained on the night after cutting, and or four days thereafter we were kept from it by intermittent was not account to the control of the control "It isn't much, my dear. This was practically spoiled, of course, but we hauled five loads to the barnyard and made a stack for the cattle to work at; leaving another small foad of scatterings (on 11 acres) that we did not take time to rake up. In all we hauled 49 loads of oat and pea hay from about 161/2 acres. We weighed the first load, a rather small one, and from this we estimated that the crop averaged over three tons to the acre.-Eugene E. Stevens, in Ohio Farmer.
