A Rigid Dutch Law.
More than 200 years ago the Dutch rulers of Ceylon, anxious to retain their monopoly of the precious spice for which that island is famous, enacted a law which made it a capital offense to buy or sell the wild jungle cinnamon, then the only sort known. The plants, wherever found, were held to be the property of the state. If a shrub chanced to spring up in a man's doorway, he could neither destroy nor use it under severe penalties. Things are happily different now.

Stuffer—Why, no! How could it be in there?
Simpkins—You haven't been anywhere else during the evening, have you?
