POULTRY POINTERS.

Everything in the poultry house should be dry.
Ducks will not thrive on sloppy food nor on cornmeal alone.
Boiled potatoes, turnips and other vegetables may be fed to ducks to advantage.
A good food for fattening fowls can be made by mixing cornmeal with mashed potatoes and milk.
In dry picking poultry the picking must be done while the fowl is warm—as soon as possible after the fowl is killed.
The nests should never be fastened to the poultry house in such a way that they cannot be readily removed and cleaned.
Fowls are very fond of raw vegetables. Beets, carrots, turnips and especially cabbage may be fed to advantage. The best plan is to chop them fine.
A dressed fowl may be made to look plump by dipping it for ten seconds in water that is nearly boiling hot and then holding it until chilled in cold water.

The Dog.

Man is the best friend of the dog. Horses come next, but between the dog and all other farm animals, from the house cat to the cow and the beef steer, there seems to be a natural enmity. Dogs, however, are fond of sheep and goats, but as diet, not as living friends. Cows and sheep and goats should be kept as free from association with dogs as is possible, with the exception of the trained shepherd dog. A dog walking through a cowpen will often cause a decrease in milk flow that amounts to more than the cash value of the dog. Many dogs are worth considerably less than nothing.

An Odd Pulpit.

The oak pulpit in the Seamen's church at Sunderland, England, is a curio in the way of pulpits. It is built of wood in the shape of a boat's bow and bears on the gunwale in letters of gold the inscription, "Nevertheless at thy word I will let down the net." The pulpit was the gift of the naval officers and men of the Dedway flotilla of torpedo boat destroyers in acknowledgment of the kindnesses received during their visit to Sunderland in May, 1901.
