FOOD AFFECTS BUTTER.

entire and Dairymen Here and Abroad.

Butter product of a cow cannot be inreased by feeding fatty substances, bu' the quality of the butter can be always effected in that way. For this reason the chemists are having no little difficulty, in determining the purity of butter when the cows have been fed on certain foods, such as oil cake. It is found on analysis that toward the end of a cow's lactation the volatile acids in the butter fat become few. It has also been found by a Swedish professor that cows exposed to cold and wet weather give butter fats that have in them a comparatively small-amount of butyric acid. Even the Dutch butter made in the fall of the year when the nights are cold and small amount of volatile acids in them that it has ofen been supposed that the butter was mixed with oleomargarine We have not infrequently seen butter in this country that powered to have no me that the writer was so sure at one time that he

One That Hade Great Promises Which Nover Were Even Partly Fulfilled.

"My dear," said Mrs. Popperman to her husband, one evening, "I was looking over a bundle of old letters to-day, and found this one which you wrote to me before we were married, when you were young and sentimental." "What does it say?" "T'll read it: "Sweet idol of my lonely eart: If thou wilt place thy hand in mine, and say, "Dear love, I'll be thy bride," we'll fly to sunny Italy, and there, 'neath soft cerulean skies, we'll bask, and sing and dream of naught but love. Rich and costly paintings by the old masters shall adorn the walls of the castle I'll give you. Thy bath shall be of milk. A box at the opera shall be at thy command, and royalty shall be thy daily visitor: Sweet strains of music shall full thee at eventide, and warbling birds shall wake thee from thy morning slumber. Dost thou accept? Yes, yes oh, fly with me.

It Is the Fad Nowadays to Indulge in the Manipulation

A teacher of boxing at the east records the somewhat surpising fact that many the somewhat surnising fact that nisty of his pupils of late are young women of high character and good social sociation, reports a Chicago paper. It is just as essential for a girl to know how to use her fists in an emergency as it is for a man, said he.
