The Jessic picnic Thursday was liberally patronized notwithstanding the fact that it had rained for several days and the roads were muddy. The sun managed to peep out along towards noon and those who went to the picnic enjoyed a good time during the afternoon and evening. There were horse races, etc., but the big drawing card was the ball game between Cooperstown and Binford for $25, the latter winning with the valuable assistance of the umpire who thought it was his duty to commit grand larceny in order to win for Binford. However, the Binford boys are good fellows and it won't hurt us a bit to have them win out—but we would like to have them win honestly.

Contractor Rowers was here the latter part of the week and has started operations on the new school house. The new building will be located on the old site, water not being found on the Syverson block in sufficient quantities and the contractor not being in shape to wait longer for further experiments, it was deemed advisable to go ahead on account of the lateness of the season. The well on the Syverson block was only down about 65 feet which is not very deep and in our opinion is not a fair test as to whether water could be obtained or not. While we regret to see such a handsome building placed on the old site it is now definitely settled and we shall all have to abide by the result, and look pleasant—if that is possible under such a disappointment.

WANTED—Capable woman for general housework. Will pay $3.50 to $5.00 per week. 25 MRS. MAYNARD CRANE.

This year the popular Annual Mid-summer Carnival under the direction of the Commercial Club of Fargo, will take place during the week of July 11th to 16th. This opportunity to visit the Gateway City and enjoy the sights of the Carnival, is one that our citizens would enjoy. The Club's reputation for giving visitors the value of their money is of itself sufficient to induce a large attendance, and the fact that the celebrated Mundy shows have been engaged for the occasion should guarantee the Club a successful issue to their venture. This is the company that has done so much to make the Annual Fairs at Winnipeg, Man., so successful. This class of show affording the maximum of entertainment at the minimum of cost, appeals to a large number of people, and we predict an attendance that will exceed the most sanguine expectations of those interested.

The greatest sensational novelty ever seen by the American public is a base ball aggregation of women. Such is the famous Boston Bloomer Girls, which will appear at the Chautauqua, July 4th, in a contest on the diamond with the Devils Lake team. They are the original, first and only base ball team composed entirely of ladies ever organized in this country. They do not play eliminate or ruddy ball but have carried off the scalps of a large number of the teams playing in the smaller leagues in different parts of the country. They have been playing in the larger cities and wherever they have gone, the press is enthusiastic in its praise of their ability. It is without question the most sensational feature ever offered the public, and will be something that none can afford to miss. The greatest sensational novelty of the age. There has been a demand for town lots the past year which would surprise most of us not in the real estate business. Buyers seem to be of the opinion that Cooperstown real estate is not likely ever again to be quite so cheap as now, and as a matter of fact the more desirable sites for homes do seem to be few.

MISSING WORDS.

Annoying Gaps in English Language That Cause Inconveniences.

The English language may fairly claim to be the most prolific in the world. Not content with its native riches, it possesses in a special degree the faculty of assimilating everything useful from other tongues, ancient and modern. It ought indeed to be the most perfect vehicle of thought in the world, and in some respects no doubt it is.

But, curiously enough, there are deficiencies in English not to be found in far less copious languages. While in many cases we have half a dozen words expressing the same or practically the same thing, there are, on the other hand, certain ideas that have no appropriate words to express them.

In the words denoting relationship some notable gaps are found. The most glaring instance is the want of a word to distinguish between a male and female cousin. Other languages, such as French and Italian, have a separate word for each, but in English some addition or explanation is required in order to make it clear which sex is intended.

Curious gaps occur here and there in our language if we look into it. The word "show" expresses the idea of making to see, but there is no word for making to hear—a photograph, for example. "I took the photograph to my friend and"—What? "Got him to listen to it" would probably be the elegant finish to the sentence.

On the other hand, "audience" means those who hear and applies very well to those present in a lecture hall or concert room. But, what of those who see a cricket match, for instance? "Spectators" is the nearest word, but it does not correspond exactly to "audience."

There is one deficiency in the language so awkward and irritating that even at this late hour it ought to be made good. Need it be said that reference is made to indiscriminate use of the personal pronoun to denote either the person speaking or the person spoken of? This may not be a defect peculiar to English, but it is one from which the ancient classical tongues are entirely free.

"He said he had offered him money, which he had declined," would be quite comprehensible either in Greek or Latin, but in English it necessitates a number of bracketed explanations which are positively annoying and destructive of grace and fluency.—London Answers.

The marriage of these young people will no doubt be a surprise to many although it was generally thought in Cooperstown that when Harry went away last week he would bring a bride with him when he returned. Mr. St. John holds the responsible position of assistant cashier at the State Bank. He is a gentleman of many good qualities—steady and attentive to business and will undoubtedly rise in his chosen profession. His bride is not personally known to the editor, but was formerly a resident of Cooperstown and made many friends here. The COURIER joins many friends in extending to Mr. and Mrs. St. John congratulations wishing them many happy years of usefulness and prosperity. For the present they will make their home with Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hazard.
