Cut this item out and paste it in a prominent place on your desk for future reference.

Laugh and grow fat at Frank Mahara's Minstrels Cooperstown Opera House June 12.

Gollmar Bros. Circus showed to a big audience in the city yesterday afternoon and evening. It was the best attraction that ever came to Norfolk. Clean in its performance, free from fakirs, gamblers and short change men. Gollmar Bros. are building up a reputation for cleanliness, not only in the freedom of the show from the tough element, but in the genuine merit of the performance which is high class in every respect. The street parade was exceptionally fine. The menagerie contained a fine collection of rare wild beasts. The black vank and the hippopotamus being the features. The only objection that could be raised," says one witness of it, "is that there is too much to see and hear at the big show."—The Daily News, Norfolk, Neb.

Wedding Bells. A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Marquardt on Tuesday, June 6, 1905, when Miss Jessie Maxwell, youngest daughter of Mrs. A. R. Moffatt, was united in marriage to Mr. Leo. L. Lang, of Hope. The ceremony was performed at 12:30 p. m. by Rev. E. S. Shaw, pastor of the Congregational church at Crookston, Minn., only the relatives and intimate friends of the contracting parties being present. The home of Mr. and Mrs. Marquardt was nicely decorated with daisies and evergreens and the bridal couple stood between the folding doors of the parlors while the officiating minister said the words that bound them together for life. Miss Blossom Marquardt was flower girl for the bride. After the ceremony congratulations were extended and those present were invited to partake of a very fine wedding dinner. Many very handsome and useful presents were received. The bride is a popular young lady and has been one of the county teachers for several years. The groom is engaged in the newspaper business at Hope, is a very much respected citizen and he and his bride are followed to their home at Hope with the hearty best wishes of a host of friends. The newly wedded couple took a bridal trip to Fargo and Minneapolis.
