J. G. WALLBRIDGE CONTRACTOR & BUILDER,

Is now ready to figure on that new building you are contemplating.

Jimeson & Olson's New Store.

Nearly two years ago Messrs. Jimeson & Olson commenced business with a small stock in the corner store. Strict application to business won out and their trade increased so that a larger stock and more room was needed and so the firm decided to build for themselves a store of their own, and we give below a picture of the new building which has been built this summer.

The building is 50 feet wide and 70 feet deep with shed room in addition on the rear. It is a full two story building with high ceiling upstairs as well as down. Messrs. Jimeson & Olson moved into the building about the 25th of July before it was completed. Since that time they have been busy fixing up and receiving new goods, until today they have a very neat, well stocked store. The COURIER is pleased to note their success. The whole upstairs has been rented by the Masonic lodge and we venture to say that no lodge outside the large cities can boast of better quarters. In addition to the large working hall there is a large dining room, club room and kitchen as well as ample ante-rooms and closets. The Masons have spent a lot of money in furnishings; the best furniture available being purchased and have very handsome quarters indeed. The whole building from top to bottom is a good piece of enterprise on the part of both Messrs. Jimeson & Olson and the Masons, the latter having rented the upstairs for three years.

Prayed Cuffs.

Among the minor arts of life of which we have lately given some instances is one which is sadly neglected. It relates to the treatment of shirt cuffs that show the first protest against the laundry's handling. The laundress is cruel, but the man who pares his shirt cuffs with scissors beeps folly upon brutality. With the first touch of steel the cuff is ruined. Light a match and pass it round the frayed edges (do not burn your wrist). The cleansing fire will remove the dross and leave intact the pure gloss of the cuff. A cuff treated with fire will last laundry generations longer than the cuff treated with steel.—London Chronicle.

Advertising and Success.

Try to name the things in trade that are great sellers and yet are not advertised. You will not get far.—Boston Herald.

Our clear headed contemporary is right. The great successes of the commercial world are good things well advertised. There is nothing like "printer's ink" to turn a merchant's dimes into dollars. And there are such skill and power of interesting description shown by the advertisers of today that the columns devoted to their announcements are not only full of information, but are mostly readable and entertaining.—New York Herald.

No Rain Could Keep Him Away.

Kathlene—It's little ye love me, or ye wud never stay away from me as ye did last evenin' jist because av a wee bit o' rain. Dudee Mike—Sure it wor a pourin' down floods, mavourneen, but it wor not th' rain that kep' me away from th' loight av y'r hivenly eyes. Kathlene—An' wot wor it? Dudee Mike—It wor th' lack av an umbrella.—New York Weekly.

Poets and Irresponsibility.

Poets are wayward creatures, largely irresponsible for their actions, or, at all events, provided with such a curiously sensitive and inflammable organization that we feel it would be unjust to judge them by ordinary standards.—London Telegraph.

Inherited.

"Your daughter's music is improving," said the professor, "but when she runs the scales I have to watch her pretty closely." "Just like her father," said Mrs. Nutt; "he made his money in the grocery line."

Picking Pockets.

"Picking pockets," said the reformer to the thief, "must be a difficult and precarious business." "It is," agreed the pickpocket. "It is, until you get your hand in."

Settled.

Meeks—The man who tries to change a woman's views is a fool. Weeks—How do you know? Meeks—My wife told me so.
