

—A land looker who had engaged a rig at A. E. Shue's livery last Friday came back minus the team. He had "staked" the horses out for the night, but not securely enough to prevent their wandering away from camp. After three days exploration of the prairies both horses were found, though separated by a dozen miles.