DAKOTA TAKES THE LEAD.

St. Paul, Feb. 16.—From the reports of the commissioner of the general land office, P. B. Grote, emigration agent of the Northern Pacific, has compiled a comparative statement, showing the general course of emigration in the United States. From this it appears that fifty-six per cent of the land entered by settlers within the limits of the United States during the years 1883 and 1884, was entered in the six Northwestern states and territories, Minnesota, Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Washington Territory. The number of acres entered in these six states 20,851,642, while the whole amount taken up in the country during the same time was only 37,521,683 acres. Of these states, Dakota leads with thirteen millions of acres entered.

The following is a description of a submarine terror recently invented by a Mr. Middleton: "The boat invented by him was of the cigar shape, not unlike the Whitehead torpedo. Its peculiarity was its power of carrying men below water. The boat could be propelled with funnels without either steam or electricity, and the 'conning tower' is above water. When within gunshot of an enemy's ironclad it could be sunk to any distance below the surface, and guided by the electric light, could be brought within thirty yards or less of the ironclad, at which range a percussion shell fired from the submarine boat could knock a hole of several feet in the ironclad, too large for any pump to remedy and sufficient to sink it."

Mrs. Dudley, the woman whose miserable aim saved the life of O'Donovan Rossa, has written a letter, and in it says: "I was brought face to face with abject cowardice for the first time, and, forgetting my recollections, I reverted to the teachings of the heroes of my country, 'Never strike a fallen foe,' and gave Rossa the worthless life he begged for. His craven appeal astonished me quite as much as my bullet astonished him, and taught me the truth of Esop's fable of the ass in the lion's skin. He would boast of laying the finest edifices of England in ruins; of hurling into eternity men, women and children; of removing crowned heads from the universe; but when a woman gave him a small pill from his own pharmacy, he, to borrow the expression of United Ireland, 'squealed.'" is only a part of beauty; but it is a part. Every lady may have it; at least, what looks like it. Magnolia Balm both freshens and beautifies.

A Clear Skin
