Nice Children.

Mary Cooper, a girl aged eight years, killed her cousin, Melville Barret, a boy of seven years, near Scuttsville, Alberman county. She has confessed, saying the boy ate her egg which had been laid on the bed; that she and her sister persuaded him to get in a chair ostensibly to put up a swing, that when the rope had been attached to the ceiling of the cabin, she made a loop in which he was persuaded to put his head; that then they knocked the chair from under him and struck him several severe blows over the head with a shovel.

The Jamestown and Fargo city elections are over. The officers-elect are undoubtedly old ringsters, as will appear by the local papers next year.

An inquirer wishes to know "how to foreclose a chattel mortgage." Well, some use a writ issued out of a competent court, and some use a pitch fork. The writ is more recherche, but the pitch fork is a strong argument and has two points in its favor.

Mr. Mark Sutherland had a mule badly injured by slipping on the ice, and running against a sharp stick, Monday night. He had all the symptoms of having fooled with a Texan steer. Another valuable mule was kicked by a sharp-shod horse three weeks ago, and is more ornamental than useful this spring.
