A few Sundays ago Henry Ward Beecher made the following statements as to his faith. He has been severely criticized for the utterances by a portion of the religious and secular press: "The foundation doctrines, as I believe them, are a personal God, Creator and Ruler over all things; the human family universally sinful; the need and possibility and facts of conversion; the divine agency in such work; Jesus Christ, the manifestation of God in human conditions; His office in redemption supreme. I do not believe in the Calvinistic form of stating the atonement. I do not believe in the fall of the human race in Adam, and, of course, I do not hold that Christ's work was to satisfy the law broken by Adam for all his posterity. The race was not lost but has been ascending steadily from creation. I am in hearty accord with revivals and revival preaching, with the educating forces of the church, and in sympathy with all ministers who, in their several ways, seek to build up men into the image of Jesus Christ, by whose faithfulness, generosity and love I hope to be saved and brought home to heaven."

Oliver Dalrymple, in a note to a Fargo paper, says: "Please state, as I fear all Dakota farmers are not yet informed, that the Minnesota railroad and warehouse commissioners have abolished dockage on account of dirt in the elevators at Duluth and Minneapolis. This will make it necessary for farmers to clean their wheat at home, and deliver it clean ready for inspection at the terminal points as has always been done in New York, Chicago and Milwaukee. This step was probably thought for the interest of producers as it saved payment of freight on fowl seed, encouraged good farming, the screenings at home for feed, and allowed all questions of shrinkage to be settled at home, if at all, instead of 200 miles away, or where they have no voice. I call attention to the above that the required cleaning mills and machinery may be provided throughout the territory in time for this great change in the handling of wheat."

The Farmers' Review gives the following summary of crop reports up to the 30th of June: "All reports for the past fourteen days have shown a steady running down of general prospects and more or less damage on account of the Hessian fly. Tennessee and Kentucky were the first states that gave us any idea of the damage to the crop. They are now the states that are harvesting, and if reports from the other winter wheat states are as bad as the reports which have been received from these states as to the yield of winter wheat, it would look to-day as if the lowest estimate of crop was a high one. Wheat for fall seeding will absorb a very large proportion of what is now called the invisible supply. In fact it is now quite a serious question where clean and pure seed wheat is to be obtained this fall."

A barrel of very fine "old stuff" cider burst at the Union house Wednesday, but without doing serious damage. A little of this New England cider yet remains. It is a fine, cooling drink, and is just too slick for mince pies.
