Our seasons have no fixed returns:
Without our will they come and go;
At noon our sudden summer burns,
Ere sunset all is snow.
But each day brings less summer cheer,
Cramps more our inefficient springs;
And something earlier every year
Our singing birds take wing.
—Lowell.

Killed by Lightning!

On Sunday morning about 2 o'clock Frank T. Neal, brother of Lemuel C. Neal, of this city, was struck by lightning at his residence five miles north of Ojata, and instantly killed. He had been sitting up with his wife, who had given birth to a daughter three days before, and had just lain down on a pallet on the floor. Beside him, and lying on his arm, was his three-year-old daughter, who it was feared was fatally injured, but after a day or two recovered consciousness and is now apparently all right. The lightning came through the stove pipe hole in the roof, dropping on the floor as a ball of fire and exploded with violence, shattering the windows, walls, an organ and some other articles. Mrs. Neal called to her husband, and receiving no answer, sprang from the bed to his side. Her screams brought out the hired man, and every effort was made to bring the dead man to life, but useless.

Lightning struck the Commercial hotel in this city, killing two persons, shocking a number of others more or less severely, and slightly injuring the building. The bolt seemed to have come down the chimney and branched out upon the various stove pipes. One of the killed was James Byrnes. He was standing near the bar in the saloon, and was thrown to the floor in a heap with four other men, none of the others being seriously injured. Byrnes was killed instantly, a slight trembling being the only sign of life discovered.

The other victim was Jane Larsgard, a young lady about 18 years old, employed in the house, who when struck, was seated in the kitchen. She also was instantly killed. Her people reside at Grand Harbor and have been telegraphed, and a sister is employed at the Elk Valley Farm.—Laramore Pioneer.

The newspaper fraternity congratulate themselves over the new postal law recently put in force by the postoffice department. It makes the taking of a newspaper, and a refusal to pay for the same, theft, and any person guilty of such an action is liable to criminal proceedings, the same as though he had stolen goods to the amount of the subscription. Hereafter it will not be considered a very shrewd scheme to take a newspaper from the postoffice a year, and then inform the publisher that you never ordered it.—North Dakota Democrat.

A barrel of very fine "old stuff" cider burst at the Union house Wednesday, but without doing serious damage. A little of this New England cider yet remains. It is a fine, cooling drink, and is just too slick for mince pies.

Just received, another lot of the White sewing machines with all the latest improvements.
