-LOCALS .-

Wheat, 64 cents. First frost Tuesday morning.

Over coats are quite becoming.

Harvest will be over this week. and the hum of the thresher will be heard.

The Lenham elevator is undergoing repairs, preparatory to the coming business.

The Frost Tuesday night did us very little damage.

Station Agent Weiland and Charlie Lyons went chichen shooting Sunday. capturing-we have not heard how many, yet.

Rev. J. W. Donaldson preached to a large congregation lost Sabbath. A subscription list is in circulation for the support of the reverned, for one-half the support of the reverned, for one-half the time the coming year, reaching in three days $175. A good investment.

Four of the Nelson Bros.' binders cut 420 acres of wheat in four days and two hours, last week, under the supervision of Mr. S. J. Russell.

Accepting an invitation extended by Mr. Wm McDaniels, last Sunday efternoon, the Dazey correspondent and S. D. Garrett, the Deering expert, had the pleasure of a drive into the country, and around and through some of the magnificent wheat fields that Northern Dakota can boast of. Going east three D. Garrett, the Deering expert, had Dakota can boast of. Going east three and one-half miles we came to the stock ranch of the Nelson Bros., with upwards of sixty head of fine young cattle grazing contentedly on the hills bardering Beld JUII work for the the store the s bordering Bald Hill creek,-for the ranch is located on the creek and at as fifty feet above us on either side, with their brows covered with rocks of mag-nificent heauty. As the sun was get. nificent beauty. 'As the sun was getting low we turned our faces homeward. Arriving at the large farm of Nelson Bros.,—here everything around denotes that a practical hand directs operations that a practical hand directs operations.

Take Notice.

The Reciprocator thresher will win every premium in contests this fall; and while it sells for the same price, is worth 100 per cent more than any other machine, in durability, economy in sav-ing wheat and cost of running. In fact, it is the best thresher on wheels, and we can prove it by the operation of the ma-chine itself. Talk is talk, but it takes a thresher to starve straw-stack chickens. Berg & Larson.

Sunday Services.

BAPTIST.-Services at school house at 11 a, m. and 7:30 p. m. Rev. E. F. Jorden, pastor.

CONGREGATIONAL.-Services at Congregational church at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p. m. Rev. F. M. Rockwell, pastor.

I am now agent for the J. I. Case Threshing Machine Co., the best thresher on wheels, and I can prove it by your neighbors. Knud Thompson.

Making Ginger Ale.

"The demand for ginger ale," said a prominent manufacturer of that article, "increases very rapidly. When I started in it years ago there were not more than twenty in the business. The most of my business now is manufacturing the extract for others to put into potable form, and these others have grown from thirty to about five hun-dred. In the main, all the makers use the same formula and method. They mix the extract with pure sugar sirup. dilute with water until an ordinary bottle contains about fifteen drops of ginger, and then put this into bottles with a carbonic acid machine. Two qualities are made, one, the better, for private use and first-class hotels and saloons, and a second for the general bar-room trade. The difference is almost entirely in the quality of the ex-tract employed. With the first, we make a ginger ale which sells for $1 or $1.20 per case of twenty-four bottles; the second runs from 50 to 75 cents a case. It may surprise you to know that three-fourths of the so-called imported article is made here. The bottles belonging to favorite brands are carefully kept and sent to us regu-larly to be filled. We leave the labels intact or paste on fac-similes, and put in new corks and metal capsules or tags. There is not one person in a thousand who can tell the difference. In one first-class hote I have been fill-ing and refilling the same old bottles now for seven years, and I think it will keep on as long as I live." "Is there no bad ginger ale in the market?" "Yes; there are two bad kinds, and both so bad that the board of health should stop their manufacture. They are made in large quantities here in New York and Brooklyn, and sold chiefly to beer-saloons and ice-cream stores. One kind is made from cheap ginger, and is doctored with the exract of red pepper and other chemi-cals to give it body and bite. The men who make it claim that red pepper is good for the stomach, but they never refer to the other chemicals. The other and worst kind is made by a few German establishments. Instead of using a pure extract, they buy up, wherever they can, condemned and spoiled ginger root. Some of them make their own extract from this, and reinforce it with cayenne. Others grind it up and brew a vile ale from it, which they tinish with cayenne and glucose. You can easily tell this last class by letting it stand after being opened. The yeast continues to work and the ale to unscrupulous saloon-keepers. never costs more than fifty cents a case, and frequently goes as low as 38 cents a case. Retailed at 10 cents it yields a larger profit than any article sold across a bar.

"It's a nice business, but has its drawbacks. Despite every precaution and safeguard the bottles every now and then explode and do damage. Last winter while watching the 'bottler' at work, the head of a large Brooklyn establishment was struck by the fragments of a bottle that burst, and had his left eye cut in half as clean as if done with a knife. In fact, you'll hardly meet a man in the business who can not show you scars similarly ob-tained."-N. 1. Sun. The First Confederate Battle-Flags. From Mrs. Burton Harrison's Recollections of a Virginia Girl in the First Year of the War, we quote the follow-ing: "Another incident of note, in personal experience during the autumn of '61, was that to two of my cousins and to me was intrusted the making of the first three battle-flags of the Confederacy, directly after Congress had decid-ed upon a design for them. They were jaunty squares of scarlet crossed with dark blue, the cross bearing stars to in-dicate the number of the seceding States. We set our best stitches upon them, edged them with golden fringes, and when they were finished dispatched one to Johnston, another to Beaure-gard, and the third to Earl Van Dorn, -the latter afterwards a dashing cavalry leader, but then commanding infantry at Manassas. The banners were received with all the enthusiasm we could have hoped for; were toasted, feted, cheered abundantly. After two years, when Van Dorn had been killed in Tennessee, mine came back to me, tattered and smoke-stained from long and honorable service in the field. But it was only a little while after it had been bestowed that there arrived one day at our lodgings in Culpeper, a huge, bashful Mississippi scout,-one of the most daring in the army, -with the frame of a Hercules and the face of a child. He was bidden to come there by his general, he said, to ask if I would not give him an order to fetch some cherished object from my dear old home—something that would prove to me they much they thought of the to me 'how much they thought of the maker of that flag!' After some hesi-tation I acquiesced, although thinking it a jest. A week later I was the as-tonished recipient of a lamented bit of finery left 'within the lines,' a wrap of white and azure, brought to us by Dillon himself, with a beaming face. He had gone through the Union pickets mounted on a load of fire-wood, and while peddling poultry had presented himself at our town house, whence he carried off his prize in triumph, with a letter in its folds telling us how rela-tives left behind longed to be sharing the joys and sorrows of those at large in the Confederacy."

Indian Logic.

Col. Royall, of the army, is one of the best known Indian fighters' in the service. He is here now on leave, his a cubit in feet and inches, the scems to possess in a greater or less degree, he said: "I once asked a remarkably intelligent Indian, who was known to have killed a white man some years ago, why it was that his race enjoyed so much going on the war-path and killing people. The conversation which ensued ran somewhat like this, the Indian beginning:

" 'Did you ever shoot a rabbit?' ···Yes.

" 'Did you ever shoot a deer?'

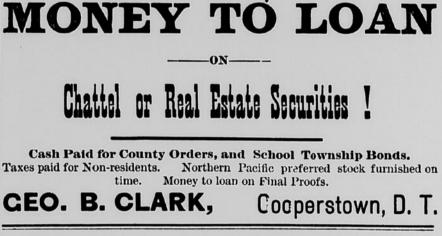

perience has been that the minute an mark of disfigurement on the swan-like Indian sheds human blood it seems to neck is effectually concealed by the affect the whole tribe in the same way high collar, large bow, band of velvet, that the smell of blood would a pack of or other artless contrivances invariably wild beasts. It intoxicates them. They become devils. They are bereft of all reason. They must satisfy their lust for murder, and the settlers on the Lincoln selected when he went to fight trail they take become their victims." - Lor. New York Tribune.

The exact size of Nonh's ark has no been determined definitely, but accord ing to Sir Isaac Newton's calculations based on his estimate of the longth of service. He is here now on leave, his health being much impaired by many years' life on the frontier. Speaking of the present disturbances and the love for murder which every Indian seems to possess in a greater or less feet deep, and she measured 28,093 tons. Although the Great Eastern was not so well proportioned as the ark, she probably had double the carrying capacity if her coal and machinery were left out of her, because she was made of iron and the ark was a wooden ship.

It is hinted that the Princess of Wales " 'Yes.' " 'Didn't you get more fun out of killing the deer than the rabbit?' " 'Yes, I guess so.' " 'Well, there's a heap more fun for " 'Well, there's a heap more fun for " 'Well, there's a heap more fun for " 'Untion to kill a man than a deer.' Totion to kill a man than a deer.' wears a wig, and it is said that the fact "That was indian logic, 'and pretty good logic, too, I should say," Col. Royall remarked, and added: "My ex-purpose also, and the presence of a worn by the future Queen.
