The Sanborn hotel is gone, like a beautiful oriental dream. All that is left of it is Editor McKean's fine electrotypewriter. It has been a celebrated caravansary in its day. Its menu was known from "where rolls the Oregon" to the "raging Red." Everything was there to delight the palate of the expectant guest, from maple syrup, to quail on the wood pile. It is now but a reminiscence of happier days. It was merry and hospitable, like the Hall of Eblis, and we shall not look upon its like again. It seems to have been peculiarly calculated for the conflagration of Wednesday morning, and it made it warm for the neighbors—carrying with it to the realms of dust and ashes all the buildings in the block, except the bank and postoffice. It was built in the style of the earlier pioneer,—a vast dry goods box, pierced with air holes, and divided up into box stalls. The architect drew the plan with a ten penny nail, and the builder built it with more alacrity than intelligence. It is to be hoped that when the original townsite boomer, Mr. Gallinger, rebuilds the temple, he will utilize some of Mr. Holliday's good brick, and employ an architect.

Terrible fires have raged at Steele, Dawson, Dickinson, Jamestown, Eldridge, Buffalo, and other places, besides home. The dry harvest weather and heavy wheat stubble make the fires peculiarly dangerous this year. The loss will exceed that by hail. The principal loss is in wheat. We haven't heard of horses, cattle, pigs and poultry being lost in large quantities. The hail did not worry them much. The drought hasn't shriveled them, nor the Hessian fly lopped of their limbs. The market of such animals is not the sport of a gang of ravenous sharks. Our farmers again realize the terrible uncertainty of exclusive wheat raising; and those who have departed from it, and commenced upon the old New England plan, are now consoled in their affliction by the cackle of the unsubdued Shanghai, the comfortable grunt of the Berkshire, and the loo of the Jersey cow.

The Sioux Falls convention is in favor of prohibition against woman suffrage, believes in wrangling over the capital question, and is about divided as to whether the South should bulldoze the government by declaring its independence, or to conciliate the government by humbly asking for admission. What's the difference? The $20,000 went last forever. When the fag end of the appropriation is reached it is probable, in the scramble to get out of Sioux Falls, an alert man may sandwich a whole comic opera between the articles of the constitution, and never be detected.

The encampment at Fargo is in full blast. There are thirteen companies from South Dakota, several brass bands, and a drum corps of eight ravishingly beautiful young ladies, of Canton, who could alone subdue the forest army that ever thundered over the earth. Company F, (First regiment), of Valley City, is resplendent in new uniforms.

Editor McKean clips the Courier's lecture to non-subscribers, and credits the article to that great cosmopolitan sheet, known as "Ex." We are waiting for one of Mac's dry jokes. If we don't leave on the point, and give the Enterprise credit it will be a cold day.

Jud LaMoure, the political acrobat, is accused of sawing the wind, by being bottle holder at a prize fight, preparatory to reaping the whirlwind. We can hardly credit the report that the honorable Jud would take any interest in such matters.

The Marquis de Moreau has been acquitted of murdering the bandit of the Little Missouri, who fell before his deadly aim. The Marquis has considerable Moreau, now. Ahem!

The Steele Herald has a new rival called the Ooze. We shall expect the Herald to appear regularly, whosever own the other paper is.

"There never was a time when eggs were as plenty as this season," said the politician, as his wife fried his Prince Albert for breakfast.

A Few ???

- 1. What was it Frank Pettigrew?
2. Why did the Secretary Teller?
3. Where does Auditor Caldwell?
4. Whom did the Governor Pierce?
5. What river did Delogate Gifford?
6. What was it made Judge Moody?
7. What fond hopes did Colonel Lounsbury?
8. On what spot did U. S. District Attorney Carlisle—St. Paul, Minn., attorney for mortgagee.

The class in history answered the above questions as follows:
1. The 46th parallel.
2. Because Ordway wasn't his boss.
3. At the Sherman village bar.
4. Authors of the Pierre capital boom, and Pickler, the woman suffragist.
5. Raymond's raging red.
6. Relaps of the division sentiment.
7. His hopes of relieving Sheriff McKenzie.
8: On the site of old Camp-bell.

The teacher then gave out the following lesson for the next day:
1. How did the Major Barrett?
2. Why didn't Jud LaMoure?
3. What did Wilbur F. Steele?
4. Why does John H. Gamble?
5. For what did J. H. travel the Westover?
6. Why did J. A. Pickler?
7. What made the Colonel Plummer?
8. Why is A. J. Marshall?

The class in history answered:
1. With Confederate calumny.
2. He was afraid Major Edwards wouldn't set.
3. A patent incubator.
4. It is a hereditary falling.
5. For a soldier's wife.
6. It is not yet settled that he did. Some think he got "picked."
7. They were mutually insured in an "old line" fire company.
8. The tail of Pettigrew's kite could hardly be otherwise.—St. Paul, Minn., attorney for mortgagee.

The Unkindest Cut.

The lynching at Neche will be another evidence that Dakota is not capable of self government, and should not be admitted as a state. Mr. LaMoure ought to make his friends behave themselves.—Argus.

Olson, the ravisher and murderer of Miss McEwen, in Pembina county, was lynched at Olga Sept. 17th, by the infuriated populace. Miss McEwen was a pre-emptor, living alone on her land.
