Pen Picture of the Fire.

"It was noon when I first saw the smoke in the west. It had been hazy all day, like Indian summer, and very hot and dry, with a parching west wind. The wheat shocks, not half a mile away, looked like great stacks in the distance. A long slough west of my place must have stopped the fire, for an hour passed before the prairie chicks and small birds commenced to fly over, and an occasional jack rabbit and antelope came by. Then the smoke rolled in, in great light clouds, with the blaze behind running in sheets, low to the ground. I thought my stacks, on the stubble, and my house, with a fire break, were safe; but the fire crinkled to the edge of the stubble, and in an instant leaped over, and my whole field was on fire. I had time only to cut the halters of my horses and rush for the north slough. The horses plunged in, and I followed them to the east side. An hour's work the night before would have saved everything, and now the fire had everything."

G. W. Stanton has been in town this week, collecting for C. A. Benson.

John Oie has been limping around with a sprained ankle, this week.

A number of our citizens were out Tuesday, burning the prairie about town, to prevent the fires from reaching us.

A man named Christ, west of Dazey, was burned out Sunday by prairie fire, while Morris Wilson and James Black, in the same neighborhood, sustained loss.
