"Is there a gentleman in the room from Dakota?" asked a congressman coming out of a committee room and stepping into one of the cloak rooms of the capitol at Washington.

"Yes, sir," promptly replied three or four, coming forward. "do you want some facts concerning the resources of the territory?"

"No, I don't, but we are having a poker game in here and I've got to go and want some one to take my hand."

The anxiety among the visiting statesmen to comply with the request was so great that it was only decided by tossing a penny.—Estelina Bell.

A new story is told of a couple of men living a few miles from Estelina. Just as one of them got home from town the other night he met the other, his nearest neighbor, and said:

"Bill, I got a little hard up while I was down town to-day and mortgaged a couple of your calves."

"O, that's all right, Tom," replied the other. "I needed some money one day pretty bad myself and raised $45 on your team over two months ago."—Estelina Bell.
