REMOVAL OF GOVERNOR MURRAY.

His Resignation Tendered to the President a Year Ago.

Eli H. Murray, until recently governor of Utah, was appointed by President Hayes. He is a native of Kentucky, which may account for his good looks. He is a Republican, and once had the empty honor of being the candidate of his party for governor of his native state. When President Cleveland was inaugurated, Governor Murray, recognizing that that would be the proper thing to do, notified the president that his resignation was ready whenever it was wanted, in order that Mr. Cleveland might feel free to appoint a man of his own political party if he wished. The resignation has not been acted on until now, however. Secretary Lamar, of the interior department, which looks after Indians and territories, notified the governor that it would be accepted.

He has made himself a terror to Mormon polygamists during his long term of office. Under him the vigorous prosecutions of the defiant law breakers took place. They one and all detested him.

GOVERNOR ELI H. MURRAY.

Some time since the non-Mormon residents of Utah appointed Mr. R. N. Baskin a delegate to go to Washington and represent their interests to congress. The resignation of Mr. Murray was forwarded through him to the president. Governor Murray has had a bitter contest with the present Utah legislature, and has vetoed several of their bills. With his resignation he forwarded a report of government matters in the territory for the last year.

An Indian Scout.

A famous Indian scout called "Dutchy" attended the lamented Capt. Crawford throughout his long chase after the Apache, Geronimo, and his murdering band. He was as faithful to his master as a dog, and loved him like a human being besides. He was at Capt. Crawford's side when that brave leader fell, pierced by his own allies, the Mexican soldiery. Whether that bullet was fired by mistake is still a mystery. Perhaps it will always remain so. But to the faithful scout, whether mistake or not, it was a thing for vengeance. He quickly laid his master upon the ground, and then, without a second's hesitation, drew up his rifle and shot dead the Mexican who had killed Capt. Crawford. In the next instant he took a second aim, and this time the commanding officer of the Mexican troops fell dead. Such was "Dutchy's" vengeance.

"DUTCHY."

The most romantic part of Dutchy's story is that he himself is an Apache, belonging up to three years ago to Geronimo's band itself, and one of its most desperate members. The band submitted three years ago, Dutchy with them. But Geronimo did not submit in good faith. Dutchy did. He has been since his surrender as powerful a friend to the United States as he was a foe before. He boasts that his rifle never misses its mark, at whosoever or whatsoever it is aimed. Crawford could scarcely have tracked Geronimo without his aid. He matched cunning with cunning, daring with greater daring, and brought to Crawford a skill, intelligence and endurance which finally overmastered Geronimo. Dutchy is the most famous Indian scout now left.

Manager Missouri Pacific.

H. M. HOXIE.

Mr. Hoxie, the vice-president and general manager of the Missouri Pacific railroad, was a contractor on the construction of the Union Pacific railroad, and afterward, for a time, its superintendent. Subsequently, he became general superintendent of the International and Great Northern railroad. For several years past he has been third vice-president and general manager of the Missouri Pacific. As his portrait indicates, he possesses a spirit of fearless determination to prosecute to the end anything he undertakes.
