the Portrait of Herr Most.

"Whose portrait is that?" a lady asked when shown the photograph from which the accompanying portait was engraved. "That is Herr Most, the Anarchist." "Well, he looks it" was her laconic comment, and most readers will agree with her. Herr Most has a rotund face and body that would indicate he was not lacking any of the good things of this world. Meeting him with his hat on one would take him to be a well-to-do saloon one would take him to be a well-to-do saloon proprietor. Ent with his hat remove and his bair closely cropped his physicgnomy is one on which no mistake can be made, the characteristics are too strongly defined. The great, heavy jaws, heavy eyes and overlanging cycbrows, the receding forehead, the abnormal development of the posterior portion of his cranium, all indicate a head admirably adapted for the mission he has in life. What the mouth and chin would show cannot be told, but it is presumed his huxuriant beard covers is presumed his luxuriant beard covers equally strong characteristics necessary to the man. It does seem cruel to call attention to the abnormal phrenological points of this monster, and yet it is the most charitable thing one can do. His training from childhood has developed the brutal and anima passions to the sacrifice of the inherent humane nature, so that it has molded his head, until it shows the brutal nature within. Herr Most is what he is because he canno now be otherwise, though it is unfortunate that men will follow such a leader. He gained his notoriety in Europe some dozen years ago through his connection with a Socialistic organization in Russia, from which Nihilism was developel. He was forced to the from Russia and lived for a time in Germany and Austria, where he quietly advanced his coctames and gatherest some followers, the outcome of their plotting being, it is claimed, the assessination of the late ever. Germany and Austria becoming too hot for Most and his compitators they scattered. Their leader next ameared in London, where he was finally imp isomed. On his release he came to this country, as being the last one among the civilized nations that would harbor him. Here he has years ago through his connection with a being the last one among the civilized hat tions that would harbor him. Here he has published his doctrines in a paper called Die Freiheit, growing gradually bolder and bolder until the police and grand jury had become convinced that his methods had become unlawful and ordered him to be locked up, but he could not be found.

up, but he could not be found.

Herr Most's last appearance in public was before his "Workingmen's Rifle club," a society of Anarchists in New York. Twenty kegs of beer were drank by his auditors to give them courage. Here he made a speech, rifle in hand. He advised his hearers to arm themselves against the interference of the police and brought his rifle to his shoulder. police and brought his rifle to his shoulder occasionally to illustrate his intentions. Two detectives were in the audience whose ev! dence will be sufficient to convict Most when caught. Two lieutenants of Most's, who were arrested, became so terrified when they found they were within the law's grasp, that they were willing to promise to renounce Socialism forever if they would be allowed their freedom. This is one of the peculiarities of the Socialist leaders that they are personally arrant cowards. August Spies, th leader of the Chicago Anarchists, is an ar-dent pupil of Most's in the shedding of blood and yet the sight of blood makes him deathly

NEW CINCINNATI COURT HOUSE.

It is Planned, but When Will It Be Finished?

Two years ago this spring the people of Cincinnati had an impression that justice had not been done in a murder trial. A colored murderer was sentenced to imprison-ment instead of to be hanged. Thereupon the indignant populace proceeded to wreak vengeance, not on the judges who bossed the trial, or the jury who let the prisoner off, or yet on the lawyers whose eloquence magnetized the jury, but on the magnificent Hamilton county court house. They riddled it and set it on fire. The fire destroyed the finest law library west of the Atlantic states. The damage done was almost incalculable. A vast amount had to be added to the tax list of the county, and the citizens will have to go down into their pockets and pay it. It was a jolly sort of vengeance that.

NEW COURT HOUSE. A splendid new court house will rise, phoenix-like from the ashes of the old one, to the tune of about $1,000,000 or more. The judges, jury, and lawyers are living still and in good health. The new building is not like the old one outwardly. That had the roof all upon the level, and had Greek columns in front. The new one will have offsets and hitches in the roof. to conform offsets and hitches in the roof, to conform more to the requirments of modern high art. Half the building is seen in the illustration.
