night collecting copy and returning proofs of speeches to the members for corrections. The press room contains nearly 100 of the most improved printing presses, from which are delivered each hour about 100,000 sheets of printed matter. Thirty immense rulin; machines are in constant use in the bindery and in the folding room, as elsewhere, the latest and most improved machinery is used to facilitate the work. A brief history of government printing is as follows:

In the first session of the First congress, 1789, the printing of bills and journals was done under the secretary of the senate and clerk of the house. In 1794 a specific appropriation was made for "firewood, stationery and printing work," $10,000. In 1803 the presi dent's message was the first document printed In 1819 each house elected its own primer for the session. The printers to corgress now became affluent and entertained hand-somely. These also gave riso to the party newspaper organ sys-tem. The most noted were Gales, Seaton, Blair and Rives. The printing of the Twenty-seventh congress cost $200,000. In 1846

the contract system STERLING F. ROUNDS. was adopted. In 1852 the office of superintendent of public printing was created. In 1870 the office was changed from congressional to public printer, and appointed by the president. Mr. A. M. Clapp, Mr. John D. Defrees and Mr. Sterling

The Newly Discovered Statue of Hercules

Reputed to Be by Phidias. Wo are enabled to present our readers an engraving from a photograph of the statue of Hercules, recently discovered in Mexico. This magnificent piece of art work is of jasper, and three feet in height, and is supposed to be the work of the famous Greek sculptor, Phidias. It represents the maddened Hercules throwing the slave, Lychas, into the sea Lychas was sent with a message from Her-cules' deserted wife. That the reception the messenger received from Hercules was more than warm is the inference one would draw from the action which the sculptor has shown in such a masterly manner.

Padre Gismondi, who by the way is a nephew of the late Pope Pio is an archmologist of considerable Nono, knowledge; he unearthed the statue's history which proves to be this: It was discovered in the ruins of Pompell some forty years ago and was presented by the king of Naples to the mother of Maximilian. On the latter's acceptance of the throne of Mexico it was given to him. On the day of his death, in 1867, the statue disappeared from the palace in some manner and was not heard of until Padre Gismondi unearthed it. It is likely that there may be legal and possibly international disputes over the possession of this treasure yet.
