THE HADDOCK MURDER CASE.

STROUX CITY, IOWA, April 17.—The jury in the case of John Arensdorf, charged with the murder of Rev. George C. Haddock, disagreed, and were finally discharged by the court today. The jury stood eleven for acquittal and one for conviction. Dennis O'Connell was the jurymen who stood out for conviction, and when the jury was before the court he said that his judgment was final. The court thereupon discharged the jury from further service. There were but few persons in the court room when the judge asked the jury to report. Foreman E. P. Webster said that eleven of the jury were agreed—but that one stood somewhat stubbornly against the large majority. Juror O'Connell, who is a farmer living in Liberty township, arose and replied to this remark in a feeling manner. He said he did not wish to be considered a stubborn man, but that he had taken an oath before God and man to honestly determine the case as far as he was concerned, and that obligation. If he were to remain in the jury room a month he could not and would not change his opinion. Mr. O'Connell's eyes filled with tears and his voice trembled from emotion. No one who heard him could doubt the sincerity of his motive. Judge Lewis thereupon discharged the jury.

IN MEMORIAM.

In the Autumn of 1881, a little band of Christians, far removed from the pleasant call of church bells, gathered together, weekly, at the house of one of their number, to follow the regular Sunday school lesson course, and so to keep alive in their hearts during their isolation, the spirit of public worship. From the first, those meetings were conducted by Mr. F. M. Rookwell, and when in the process of time the little band became the First Congregational church of Cooperstown, he was unanimously chosen as its pastor, and in the hearts of its members, his name will ever be held in most loving remembrance. To him the church owes its beginning; under his fostering care it grew, and by the light of God within him, never hidden, shining often through clouds and great darkness and many tears, many, who are here this morning, saw for the first time, the path which is leading them up to Heaven. His zeal was unflinching, his love was boundless, his sympathy was Christlike, and in this little corner of his Master's vineyard, he labored with touching faithfulness, giving himself no rest, making no complaint, denying himself even needed comforts, being verily like those first preachers whom our Lord sent out, who were commanded to take with them only their staff. But although his desire that men should be saved was divine, his brain and body were human, and those members, which had been such willing servants to his love for so long, refused at last to answer to its call, and last week we learned that the Master whom he served had said to him: "Well done, thou good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." We as a church may well mingle our tears with those of his family, but even while our eyes are wet, we bow in thanksgiving that our benefactor, our dear friend, our more than brother, has at last come face to face with that Savior whom he loved so well; that he has awakened in His likeness, and is satisfied.
