DOMESTIC.

The public-debt statement on the 1st shows the total debt to be $1,875,078,716; cash in treasury, $56,758,704; debt less cash in treasury, $1,238,892,701. Decrease during October, $18,833,895. Decrease since June 30, 1887, $40,736,035.

The winter packing season opened in Chicago on the 1st. Hogs were plenty at the stock yards, and the best droves were fifty cents per hundred pounds higher than a year ago.

An engine exploded near Hack Berry, Cal., on the 1st, killing Engineer Schroeder, Fireman Long and Brakeman Trapp.

The strike of the union book and job printers in Chicago for a nine-hour day occurred on the 1st. There were 443 men who quit work, out of a total of 700 union men employed.

A gale swept the New Jersey coast on the 1st, doing great damage to shipping.

The First Comptroller of the Treasury at Washington decided on the 1st that clerks in the first and second-class post-offices were not entitled to extra compensation for delivering special-delivery letters. He held that such extra compensation could only be paid in third and fourth-class offices.

At Manchester, Ia., the National Butter, Egg and Cheese Association began its annual session on the 1st with President B. T. Schermerhorn in the chair. Interesting reports were read. The falling off in the consumption of dairy butter was said to be due to the sale of oleomargarine.

The special grand jury summoned to investigate the Amer Green lynching at Delhi, Ind., made its report on the 1st. No indictments were found, and the county officials were held free from blame for the r part in the affair.

The decision of the United States Supreme Court at Washington upon the petition for a writ of error in the case of the Chicago Anarchists was announced on the forenoon of the 2d by Chief Justice Waite in a long and carefully-prepared opinion which occupied thirty-five minutes in the reading, and which closed as follows: "We are of the opinion that no Federal question has been presented warranting the interference of this court, and therefore we deny the writ." An appeal to Governor Oglesby is the only recourse now left to the condemned men.

The business portion of the town of Trenton, Ark., was destroyed by fire on the 2d.

At Hebron, Conn., on the 2d John Hodel, while drunk, shot his wife and then set fire in the flames. It was thought that Garrett's second wife, step-mother of the girl, fired the building.

During the seven days ended on the 4th there were seventy-four cases of yellow fever at Tampa, Fla., of which nine proved fatal. The epidemic was gradually subsiding.

It was reported on the 4th that Thomas Owens, a carpenter, who recently fell from a building in Homestead, Pa., and broke his neck, told a fellow-workman that he was an Anarchist, that he came from Chicago, and that he threw a bomb at the Haymarket riot. The whole story is considered a hoax.

The Supreme Court of Indiana decided on the 4th that a student attending school in any other county than that in which he has his permanent residence is not an elector under the law.

It was clearly proved on the 4th that the recent terrible explosion in St. Louis, by which nine lives were lost, was purely accidental, but the cause still remained a mystery.

On the 4th the progress of the flames a number of people were injured by falling walls.

C. W. LIVINGOOD'S five-year old daughter was burned to death on the 4th at Blue Springs, Neb. She had been playing with matches.

In the office of Pickards, Mather & Co., at Cleveland, O., a boy, while playing with a loaded rifle on the 4th discharged the weapon, and the bullet struck William J. Matson, a book-keeper, and killed him.

REPORTS were received on the 4th at Norfolk, Va., that the schooner Ocean Bird sank in Pasquotank river during a recent storm, and that all of the twenty persons on board perished.

SHADY GROVE, Ky., was totally destroyed by flames on the 4th. The fire started in Lemmon's grocery store and swept the village from end to end.

SCOTT BAY and Charles Sims were imprisoned at Pittsburgh, Pa., on the 14th on a charge of killing Frank Harn, whose remains were recently shipped to Chicago in a carriage.

TUCK AGES was hanged on the 4th at Lexington, Ky., for the murder of his brother-in-law, and Henry Robinson (colored) met a similar fate at Union Springs, Ark., for killing an aged negro.

It was announced on the 4th that the sending of the bomb to Chief Justice Waite's residence in Washington was a cruel hoax and was the work of Sherburne G. Hopkins, who makes a precarious living by selling sensational news to newspaper correspondents, and Arthur D. Sperry, a reporter. Both men had been arrested.

LATER NEWS.

The cells of the condemned Chicago Anarchists were thoroughly searched on the 6th, and in the one occupied by Lingg four bombs were found after the prisoner, who had been taken out, had made a desperate attempt to prevent the officers from entering. How the bombs came there was a mystery. During the night of the 5th Engel attempted to commit suicide by taking laudanum, but a doctor saved his life. Governor Oglesby had received several letters threatening him with assassination unless he commuted the sentence of the Anarchists.

The Porter block and several adjoining buildings at Clayton, N. Y., were burned on the 6th. Loss, $100,000.

At twenty-six leading clearing-houses in the United States the exchanges during the week ended on the 5th aggregated $1,043,364,775, against $992,277,896 the previous week. As compared with the corresponding week of 1886 the increase amounts to 1.2 per cent.

The stable of the Kansas City horse and mule market was destroyed by an incendiary fire on the 6th, and thirty horses and mules perished in the flames.

CONSIDERABLE excitement was caused on the 5th at Philadelphia by the discovery that a physician of that city had two lepers under his care.

By an explosion of molten steel on the 5th at the works of an iron company near Springfield, Ill., four men were fatally injured.

EXPERIMENTS on the 5th at New York with nitro-glycerine shells showed that if iron ships had been fired at instead of targets they would have been blown to pieces.

GENERAL RUGER gave battle on the 5th to the Crow Agency Indians in Montana, in which Sword-Bearer and three or four of his desperate followers were killed, and the outbreak was virtually crushed.

FOUR DEADLY BOMBS.

Engines of Death Found Secreted in Anarchist Lingg's Cell—A Timely Discovery—Engel Attempts Suicide—The Amnesty Movement.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—Four bombs were taken yesterday morning from the cell of Louis Lingg, the condemned Anarchist, in Cook County jail. They were found under his cot hidden beneath a mass of papers and odds and ends of various kinds and were inclosed in a harmless-looking wooden box. A thorough search of all the cells of the condemned men was in progress at the time by direction of Sheriff Matson and Jailer Fols. Turnkey John Egan was the man to make the discovery. He at once took the bombs to the jail office, where a cursory examination at once made their capabilities for destructiveness apparent. As soon as their nature was determined it was deemed unwise to make further examination and they were wrapped in newspapers and laid aside to await the sheriff's disposal. He arrived soon afterwards, and as neither he nor any of the jail officials had any practical knowledge of the mechanism of infernal machines the bombs were taken from the jail and placed in the hands of an expert for examination. The bombs were four in number, as stated, and were what are known as "gas-pipe" bombs in distinction from the spheroidal bomb thrown at the Haymarket. The iron gas-pipe used was about six inches long and an inch in diameter. All were exactly alike as to dimensions, and differed only in some of the minor details. All were plugged at each end, and in the judgment of those who made examination, were filled with explosive material of unknown character. The plugs were of metal, and those examined had been turned in order to fit with exactness and solidity. The sheriff refused to state in whose hands the bombs were placed for examination, and said that no report would be made on them until to-day. No representatives of the press were admitted to the jail until the bombs had been removed, and no authorized statement of the facts was made until nearly 5 o'clock. The search which resulted in the finding of the bombs was not undertaken in consequence of any hint received by the jail officials or of any definite suspicion. The cells of the condemned men have been casually searched each day; but owing to the mass of papers, books and trash of all kinds that has accumulated the examination has been necessarily far from thorough. Sheriff Matson and Jailer Fols talked the matter over a few days ago and decided that inasmuch as the date of execution was drawing near it would be a wise precaution to make a search of the persons and cells of the condemned men which should be absolute in its thoroughness. During the search Lingg, who with Engel had been removed to the consultation cage, was extremely nervous, but as he saw that his bombs had been found, seemed to think that the worst was over, and almost immediately regained his self-possession and assumed his usual indifferent, defiant manner. Nothing suspicious was found in the cells of the other condemned men.

There is, of course, much speculation as to how the bombs got into Lingg's cell and how and when they were to be used. Necessarily they must have been taken to the jail by somebody in full accord with Lingg's state of mind and intentions and passed in some manner to Lingg or one of his fellow Anarchists. The bombs might be gotten to the prisoners in several ways, and none of them are particularly improbable. The easiest way would have been for a visitor to pass them through the grating that divides the visitors' cage from the prisoners' pen.

George Engel attempted suicide Saturday night by taking an ounce of laudanum. About 11:20 o'clock Emil Zoener, who is on the night death-watch, passed Engel's cell and was attracted by groans coming from Engel's cell. On stopping to inquire the cause he found Engel prostrated on his back and breathing heavily. He called him by name, but received no answer, and on opening his cell door discovered that the man was unconscious and suffering from the effect of some drug, which had stupefied him.

A physician was called and he soon discovered that Engel was suffering from poison. His eyes were dilated, and rolled spasmodically. Dr. Gray at once commenced active work on his patient. After an hour and a half hard labor Dr. Gray succeeded in getting Engel out of danger, and he was left to the care of the jail attendants until morning.

As soon as Engel came to his senses he raved and cursed at being disturbed in his sleep, and asked the reason of his being awakened. He protested that he had only drunk a little whisky and was all right. The examination of Engel's cell on Sunday resulted in the discovery of the bottle which contained the laudanum taken by Engel. The bottle furnished no evidence from whom it was procured. Engel acknowledged during the day that he had taken the poison with suicidal intent. He said he preferred death by his own hand to being executed by law, and had taken the poison with the intention of taking his life. He refused to tell where he obtained the drug.

Tables were on Saturday placed in a dozen prominent places, street corners or other available spots, upon which are petitions for the commutation of the sentence of death of the condemned Anarchists. Mayor B. C. granted this privilege with the provision that no crowds were to be permitted to collect. At 12 o'clock two tables were set up near the court-house, on Clark street, and on them were placed copies of the petition and a lead pencil. Behind them on the wall was hung a blue-and-white card sign which read:

"Petitions for the condemned Anarchists. Please sign and pass on."

Within two minutes there was a crowd of fifty or more around the tables, and the work had begun. The names went down almost as rapidly as one man could give place to another. There was no excitement and no blockade. The crowd was constantly changing, but never augmenting. Similar tables have been placed in various parts of the city. Signatures to the petitions will be solicited up to 6 o'clock Tuesday evening, when the final preparation of the petition to the Governor must be made.

The bodies of the condemned men will be turned over to their families after their execution. Custom and precedent have established this method generally in the United States, and the sheriff has decided to do so with the bodies of these men.

WAS IT DYNAMITE?

Chief Justice Waite Receives a Mysterious Box—The Contrivance Resembles an Infernal Machine, and the Suspicion is That an Attempt Has Been Made to Take His Life—A Broken Wire Renders the Hoax Harmless—The Affair May Have Been Concealed Simply for the Purpose of Creating a Sensation.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—An attempt was made last night to either kill or maim Chief Justice Waite of the United States Supreme Court or to perpetrate a silly hoax. About 6:30 a small pasteboard box was sent to his house through the special-delivery postal service. It was about ten by six inches and looked something like a valentine box. It was addressed in a small, cramped and apparently disguised back-hand to "Hon. Chief Justice Waite, No. 1415 I Street, N. W., Washington, D. C." Near the bottom were the words "Important papers," underlined.

The thing inclosed was a glass tube about ten inches long and of the diameter of a lead pencil. The tube was bent at an angle of about sixty degrees, and was fastened to the box by means of small pieces of heavy paper pasted over it. The tube for most of its length contained a jet-black liquid, but about one and a half inches from the end was a percussion cap separating the fluid from a little more than an inch of coarse powder, apparently what is known as Atlas powder. At the other end of the powder was another percussion cap, and to this was attached the wire, which was apparently intended to explode the tube. This wire was joined to a small rubber band fastened to one side of the box, and another wire ran from the rubber to a "hook and eye," which was held in place by a piece of paper pasted over it. If the machine is really what it seems to be the raising of the lid would have exploded it. Before it reached the Chief Justice's house, however, the box was stamped on one side by a post-office employe, and the force of the blow caused the wire to slip through the "hook and eye," thus severing the necessary connection.

There are circumstances which lead to a suspicion that the whole thing is a hoax. The person through whom the matter was brought to the attention of the police is a young man who sells items to newspaper correspondents, and who is not by many regarded as trustworthy. His name is withheld at the request of the police, to whom he told substantially the following story:

About 6 o'clock he went to the post-office to post a letter and going to one of the desks to address it he noticed a man waiting the address of Chief Justice Waite on a box. He says he thought nothing of it at the time, and therefore did not observe the man closely enough to be able to identify him. When on the street, however, the thought came to him that there was something suspicious about it, inasmuch as the Chief Justice had on Wednesday delivered the opinion denying a writ of error to the condemned Chicago Anarchists. He thereupon went to the home of the Chief Justice and inquired of him if he had received a box. The Chief Justice said he had not, and the young man then went to the post-office and ascertained that the box had been delivered at 6:30 o'clock. He next offered to sell two newspaper correspondents a story about it. The correspondents desired to make a further investigation, and went to the police station and told the story to Detective Sergeant Hollanberger, who immediately called on the Chief Justice, who then acknowledged receiving the box, and gave it to the sergeant.

The Chief Justice said he had received the box while at dinner and had opened it, but without being harmed, the wire which was to have exploded it having been detached, as already stated. Mr. Waite did not attach any importance to the box, and said he thought it a sensational hoax. The sergeant took the box to police headquarters, where it is now held as evidence. Sergeant Hollanberger said he had no clew to the sender of the box.

A PANIC AT ST. LOUIS.

A Freight Train Crashes Into a Circus Train in the Depot Here, and the Animals Run at Large for a Time—Desperate Struggles to Recapture Them—A Life Lost.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 4.—A freight train crashed into six cars carrying Robinson's circus in the Union Depot last evening, killing one man and hurting several people. The depot was crowded at the time with residents of suburban and country towns. The circus train, laden with circus people, lions, gira, big snakes and other embellishment of the circus menagerie, ran off the track just as they are leaving the depot. They were scarcely off before the freight train crashed into them, doing its work of destruction and death and setting free among the people the wild beasts of the menageries. George Squires, a canvas man, had his head and limbs cut off. The collision... once drew a crowd. Suddenly a voice screamed: "My God, the tiger is loose!" and a huge beast bounded into the crowd, and it scattered in all directions. One man was bitten in the neck by the infuriated animal. Officers were present, but they dared not shoot at the beast in the crowd.

A flight of stairs leads to the upper offices, and up this the tiger sprang. Near the top he met Joseph Charles, one of the clerks. The surprise was all on Mr. Charles' side. Man and animal stood facing each other. There was not room for either to pass, and Mr. Charles slowly retreated, facing the animal, which glared at him and followed him step by step, preparing for a spring. Mr. Charles shouted for assistance. There were three women in the office who did not shriek or faint, but got chairs and tables to barricade the door and shouted for assistance from the window. Mr. Charles got into the office safely, but his revolver through the slightly-opened door, and fired at the tiger. The latter became more and more infuriated by every shot. At this juncture circus men arrived with poles and canvas, and after a struggle, succeeded in overpowering the brute. They threw canvas over him and pinned him to the floor, where they held him until he was taken to a cage.

Nine cages were demolished in the collision, and fourteen animals in all were liberated. Two mountain lions are dead and a big boar constrictor was cut to pieces. A lion was overpowered with pikes and canvas under a freight train; a leopard was shot in the head; an ibex was captured slightly injured, and the Bengal tiger has three bullets in him and numerous pipe wounds. The company's loss is $30,000.
