During the snow storm and blizzard of last Saturday night, Christ. Evenson and his two children were frozen to death. They had been to Hatton Saturday afternoon and toward night they started with their team for their home a few miles west of Golden Lake. In the storm they lost their way, and Sunday afternoon the team was found standing on a small hill four or five miles from August Caltum's place. In the wagon were found the frozen bodies of Evenson and his two children—a little boy and girl. The father had taken off his own coat and wrapped with it, a couple of quilts, around the children, probably knowing he would perish, but hoped to keep the little ones alive until discovered in the morning. Such a death is sad indeed and one cannot but admit the devotion of the father. It sounds well in fiction but when it happens under our own observation, it can be truly said that this father laid down his life like a hero.—Mayville Tribune.
